What is the CPO?

- › The CPO is an independent state agency that provides free and confidential services to anyone who calls.
- › We connect directly with youth living in DYS facilities, residential facilities and foster homes, as well as children and families working with child protection services.

What can the CPO do to help me?

- › We review your concerns and questions about services, treatment and living conditions in DYS facilities, residential facilities or foster homes.
- › We explain how decisions are made in your case.
- › We give you information to help you advocate for yourself and your child.

What are questions the CPO can help me answer?

The CPO has helped parents in Colorado answer the following questions:

- › How do I get visits with my child?
- › Who makes decisions about where my child lives?
- › How can I advocate for my child?
- › Why was my child disciplined?
- › How do I get documents about my child's case?
- › What can I do if I think someone is hurting my child?
